Pistol and Rifle scores: Shooters who came to a match scored a point (attendance point). Shooters who won a match scored a point. Preliminary rounds were 5 to 7 matches depending on the total number of shooters (an overall time factor). Shooters were then placed in two groups according to ability. Blue indicated better ability for that day. A number with an asterisk was the group winner for the day, two asterisks was second place. The first number indicates the attendance point plus their actual wins. The second number was a shooters possible wins throughout the daily match preliminary rounds and with double elimination final rounds (which some shooters shot a lot before winning or being eliminated). Sandbagging by a better ability shooter could place a shooter in a lower ability group where there were more shooters and thus skew total daily results and mess up total overall results. Row placement was determined by overall wins, not by daily wins. The goal was to have fun.
